Board joins Senate on cutback study

by Evelyn Schusheim

In its meeting yesterday, the Board of Governors approved Senate's proposal to create a joint committee to study the recommendations of the Task Force.

Senate recommended that the committee have ten members "broadly representative of the University community".

The nominating committees of both the Senate and the Board of Governors have submitted lists of names to Principal Robert E. Bell, and he is expected to announce the members selected within a few days.

The Board agreed with the members of the Task Force that a cut in expenditures is necessary. McGill has an endowment fund that has absorbed the deficits for the past two years. According to Vice-Principal (Professional Affairs) Stanley Frost the fund is dwindling and unless budgetary cuts are made, the University will not be able to operate for very much longer.

The committee will present its report by Oct. 14, the date of the next Senate meeting. The Board of Governors also approved Senate's suggestion that the Oct. 14 meeting be a joint meeting of both the Senate and the Board of Governors.

A budget for next year has to be submitted to the Quebec Education Department by Nov. 1 in order for McGill's grant to be calculated. Although McGill has been late in submitting its expenditure analysis in past years, most of the budget must be in by that date.

Gregory hits suppression

by Arnold Bennett

"America is a sick, slimy, degenerate society run by a bunch of faggot-assed fageys." This blast was levelled again and again last night at Loyola by militant black comedian Dick Gregory.

For this condition, he declared, not only Nixon is to blame, but also the so-called "decent folks" who would have crushed true morality ten years ago as they are trying to now. They see morality, he added, as a "shaven face, a Brooks Brothers suit, and a haircut once a week, if you have that you can be as sick and degenerate as you want."

"America would tie Jesus on a peace symbol and drop him over a cliff," he proclaimed, as he accused white America of using its own children as the "new Indians", by blaming all its troubles on them and murdering them at Kent State.

This tragedy was the culmination of a long history of using various minority groups as scapegoats. When the Irish refused to remain in that role, Gregory said, "the Irish policemen were used to enforce bad laws and were made to think that they were protecting the constitution."

The Italians, he continued, in their scapegoat "Indian" phase produced Sacco and Vanzetti, alleged terrorists who were executed after an unfair

Southern Africa target Teach-in calls for liberation

by Robert MacKenzie

The Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa came into existence yesterday evening.

At a meeting organized and chaired by John Evans, BA 4, the fledgling committee discussed topics for intensive study by its 10 members and plans for a major Teach-in on Southern Africa, set for mid-October.

John Shingler, a member of McGill's Political Science department and, in his words, an exile from South Africa, acted as advisor to the group.

Mid-way through the discussion, he recommended bringing several important African speakers to Montreal who are presently speaking at a seminar in Toronto, which ends October 19.

These include Ruth First, a well-known international journalist who once spent 140 days in solitary confinement in South Africa, and Oliver Tambo, president of the African National Congress.

Several other former residents of South Africa, now in New York City, will be contacted soon.

Since so little time is available for organizing, the Committee will work feverishly during the coming weeks to gain popular support and financial aid for their cause, and to overcome the many problems of holding the seminars.

Their next meeting will be held Monday night.

When the Teach-in is over, they will concentrate their efforts on studying the problems of Southern Africa and will take an active role in educating the Canadian people of its struggle for liberation.

Many spectacular facts about South Africa's racial policies and its government were put forth at the meeting. Spectacular, that is, to a casual observer. They are considered commonplace to people familiar with the area.

For example, Professor Shingler said that 4% of the world's executions are carried out in South Africa.

"One million blacks are arrested there each year; that's one in every six. Four thousand political prisoners are collectively serving fifty thousand years of sentences at the present time."

Financing their teach-in is a problem they will try to solve this week.

Several groups, including the Art and Science Undergraduate Society, the Students' Society and the Black Students' Association will be approached soon.

If sufficient funds are not granted at McGill, the students' associations of Loyola and Sir George and the general public will be asked to contribute.

SOUTHERN AFRICA LIBERATORS: At a Teach-in last night, these people established a committee which someday hopes to overthrow the government of Southern Africa.

S.C. expands bursaries

Apparently flushed with confidence resulting from a balanced budget, Students' Council gave the go-ahead recently for the expansion of the number of bursaries it presently distributes to needy McGill students.

At the last Council meeting held last week, representatives approved a motion to establish 10 bursaries, each worth $150. Funds for the grants were approved, and pending agreement with the Student Aid office which administers the grants, the bursaries will soon be awarded to suitable applicants.

Kevin O'Connell, Internal Vice-President of the McGill Students' Society, said the plans concerning the grants were originally made during the summer months.

He noted that last year, $450 was allocated for only three bursaries.

"I thought the situation was rather hypocritical," he said. "Establishing these new bursaries is the minimum the Students' Society can do for its members when it has blown $3000 on Freshman Reception."

"At least the bursaries are budgeted for," he continued.

"Abortions are murder"

The anti-abortion movement took a step out of semi-obscure recently with the taping of an Under Attack sequence at Sir George Williams University.

"Any interruption of the growth of a fetus is outright murder and should be treated as such," declared Mrs. Grace Hargraves, chairman of the Alliance For Life, an Ottawa-based anti-abortion organization.

Denouncing current abortion laws as being too liberal, the mother of seven restricted the application of abortion to those cases where the mother's life was otherwise in jeopardy.

Mrs. Hargraves compared the termination of pregnancies caused by incest or rape to lynching.

Using statistics allegedly supplied by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, she claimed that less than 10 women died each year for the past five years from illegal abortions.

The AFL chairman slammed the media for creating "panic propaganda", noting that newspaper estimates of non-clinical abortions have been as high as 500,000 a year. This figure implies that one out of every eight women of child-bearing age has an abortion each year.

Several times during questioning by an all-male panel and by the audience, Mrs. Hargraves held up pictures of fetuses at different stages of development.

"You can count the fingers and toes of this eight-week-old fetus," she pointed out. "This unborn child has the same right to live as a child already born."

Commenting on the plight of women who suffer maiming or death due to non-clinical abortions, Mrs. Hargraves said, "If the woman didn't take a life in the first place, she wouldn't be hemorrhaging or dying."

This apparently callous attitude is based on her idea and that of the AFL that "the human life, which begins at conception and ends at death, is a life apart from the mother's and will never be duplicated."

"Neither you nor I have the right to kill a human child, whether it is in the womb or outside of it," she asserted.

The outspoken crusader also justified imposing AFL beliefs on other women on the grounds that a human life is thereby saved.

Mrs. Hargraves shuddered when told of a McGill student who almost died after she was doused with a powerful detergent to induce an abortion.

Newsfeature by Esmond Choueke

But regardless of the girls determined to terminate their pregnancies at any cost, she maintained that safe clinical abortions should not be legalized.

"Even if some people in our society rape, steal and murder, should we legalize rape, theft and murder?" she asked.

In response to posters proclaiming "This uterus is not Government property," Mrs. Hargraves said, "The answer to the problem of women who cannot face their pregnancies is contraception, not abortion."

"Failing this, society should provide care for unwed mothers and their babies," she added.

In a Daily interview, Mrs. Hargraves advised pregnant McGill students to contact Birthright, a Toronto group which provides free psychiatric, gynaecological and obstetrical care to unwed mothers.

"More important," she noted, "Birthright will counsel the girl and help her so that she won't think her pregnancy is the worst thing in the world and that her life won't go on anymore if the pregnancy is not terminated."

"They will combat the depression that is prevalent in all pregnant women during their first few months of pregnancy," she continued.

Mrs. Hargraves revealed that pregnant girls who threaten suicide very rarely carry out their threat, due to "a type of strong survival instinct."

"The suicide rate of pregnant women in the 20-24 year-old age group is one-sixth that of non-pregnant girls in this age group," she claimed.

Another member of the Alliance For Life, Dr. Suzanne Carreau, contended that contracting German measles during pregnancy is not enough cause to warrant an abortion.

According to Dr. Carreau, although German measles causes severe birth defects in a certain percentage of babies, the percentage estimates range from 10 percent to 90 percent.

"I wouldn't take the decision to kill possibly two or three perfectly healthy babies to prevent the birth of one malformed child," said Dr. Carreau in a telephone interview. "I know crippled people who prefer their life to none at all."

Unlike Mrs. Hargraves, however, Dr. Carreau agrees to abortions in certain cases where the mother-to-be has had counselling and all help possible but still opts for abortion.

"But the decision should not be made in a panic," Dr. Carreau concluded.

Is McGill really cold?

Sir,

Just a comment on the bureaucratic, unfriendly, cold-ness" of McGill, which, according to the McGill 150 Booklet, the Student Handbook, etc. etc. is irremediable due to the character of the University itself, and which is only partially improvable if the freshman or student casts himself into a frenzy of effort to make himself feel welcome.

This situation is not due to the University, for 'what is the University but for the students' - which does not mean that because going to get corns, then callouses, and finally a bunion that's going to wear the shoe out."

Gregory also sought to prove that repression was more detrimental to the oppressor than to the oppressed, by comparing repression to blocking the spout on a tea kettle in a one-room kitchenette.

students attend it, a university will be welcoming, or, because the students who attend it wish it, the University will be welcoming. The welcoming business, to be authentic, and not misconstrued as, for example, bureaucratic propaganda, i.e. insincerity, must come from the students alone.

Witness the case of other universities such as Carleton. Upon nette.

"If you stop the universal law of nature, nature's going to react. The conditions causing the whistle on the tea kettle should be relieved, because if a tea-kettle's going to blow in a one-room kitchenette, everybody's going to get burned, including Brother Mitchell."

Gregory lashed out at Marxists and ideological revolutionaries.

"Revolution is just another form of evolution. Marx was wrong when he said that it could be controlled by man."

Alcohol, he affirmed, is a greater problem than drugs, but "it's legal because a bunch of faggot assed fogies in Brooks Brothers suits said so."

However, he attacked pushers of hard drugs. "Maybe someday the hardhats will go out on the street corners and attack the dope pushers instead of the college kids."

If students don't want to welcome others it's their right, but it's also the students who aren't being welcomed as well as welcomed. The fact that Freshman Reception has been successful elsewhere is certainly not entirely due to the disproportionate sizes of the other universities as compared with that of McGill, but rather the disproportionate efforts of the students. This casts perhaps more aspersions upon the character of the Mc-

McGill takes trivia quiz

by Sandra Margulis

Sweeping victories marked McGill's encounter last weekend with four Canadian universities in a new television quiz program, University Challenge.

Faith Wallis, Julius Grey, Brian Schecter and William Kedentser

It's tough GROWING UP

When you were a kid you could get away with climbing trees and playing games and just generally having fun. But things are a little different now. Even clothes can be a problem. And getting those eyelashes on in under 15 minutes is next to impossible. That monthly period is a drag. Well, that is, unless you use Tampax tampons.

Tampax tampons are modern sanitary protection worn internally. You don't have the bother of uncomfortable pads and belts. Tampax tampons are great. They don't show—no one will ever know it's that time of the month. And you can't feel them when they're properly in place. A doctor developed Tampax tampons, so you know you can trust them. Millions of women all over the world do. How about you?

Tampax tampons come in three absorbency-sizes—Regular, Super and Junior—and a little folder in every package explains exactly how to use them.

of McGill, coached by history professor Robert Vogel, won the maximum four games against McMaster University (190-95), Carleton (215-117), York (250-135), and University of Manitoba (220-115).

Commenting on last weekend's two-day game series, Faith Wallis said that the University of Manitoba's team was the best prepared. However, she said that the McMaster game was the most difficult, because the team was tired and "a little punchy."

According to Faith, the weekend was gruelling: "You came out feeling like a limp dishrag."

William Kedentser referred to the questions asked on the show as "honours trivia", covering a wide range of subjects from music to history but almost totally excluding science.

"Unfortunately," he said, "that is my forte."

C.D. Solin, Dean of Students, who was instrumental in choosing team members and organizing McGill's appearance on the show, said that quiz games are "probably a lot of fun."

"I think they don't always necessarily indicate depths of knowledge," he added.

University Challenge is similar in structure and format to the American College Bowl program and will be shown Oct. 18.

Jackson slayings termed unjustified

WASHINGTON (CUP) — The shootings of six students at Kent State University in Ohio and Jackson State College in Mississippi by law enforcement authorities last May was "completely unjustified"; two members of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest said.

James Ahern, 38, Police Chief of New Haven, Conn., and Joseph Rhodes Jr., 22, a Harvard student, were interviewed Sunday.

The commission conducted investigations into the four deaths at Kent State and the two at Jackson State. The findings were "A remarkable, incredible lack of concern for the human life of black people" among the police in Jackson, Rhodes said.

Testimony concerning the shootings by National Guard Troops at Kent State was contradictory, he said, but "We found that in both cases the use of the deadly force that was used was completely unjustified."

The Commission will make public its full report, later this week.

Shinerama

Dreams of raising $20,000 for the Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation turned out to be just that, McGill Shinerama organizers discovered yesterday.

Final tallies showed that only a little over $1,100 was collected during the day-long drive held Friday.

Although plans called for 300 students to roam the streets of downtown Montreal, the McGill campus and Jarry Park, only 80 volunteers ever materialized.

Terming early reports of success 'bunk', Frank Gabrielli, co-ordinator of the campaign, blamed the conditional permit granted by Montreal City Hall as being the main factor in the campaign's failure.

The permit apparently allowed collection of funds only on private property where permission had been granted.

The reason given for the restriction, Gabrielli claimed, was the fear that the students might "cause trouble".

"As a member of the Faculty of Education, I find it very hard to believe that the future teachers of Quebec would go out and cause a riot, especially when they're working to save children's lives," he pointed out.

Complications in Jarry Park and competition from the Crippled Children's Campaign also apparently helped sabotage campaign goals.

Although the McGill education students had permission to campaign at the Jarry Park parking lot, they were expelled from the premises.

General Motors spurns French

MONTREAL (CUP) - The number one company in automobile manufacturing, General Motors, has not ceased to cause headaches for the Quebec Government.

GM has refused to accept in its collective agreement with the workers that French should effectively be the working language of its 2,300 Quebec employees in Ste Therese.

The United Auto Workers, an affiliate of the Quebec Federation of Labour, have recently demanded that Premier Robert Bourassa intervene promptly in the dispute by going over and "sweet-talking" his friends in GM.

The Union also asked the government to take legislative action, so that other workers in Quebec would not be pressured into striking to win their case on the question of French as the working language.

Negotiations at Ste Therese have not shown any important progress since the strike began a week ago.

According to Maurice Vassart, Leader of the Quebec UAW, there are still two problems to be dealt with: The Company has refused to allow grievances, presented during the duration of the collective bargaining, to be submitted to a French speaking arbitration board; GM has refused to allow the contract to recognize French as the working language in Ste Therese.

The union says discrimination works against unilingual French workers, for whom certain jobs are inaccessible, while the Company itself names unilingual English as foremen.
